BLOOD TRACES ETC.

NOT SUITABLE FOR CHILDREN

Minister of Justice Monica Mæland,

I would like to congratulate the country's new Minister of Justice.

This report shows the connection between corruption in the judicial system and child abuse. I refer to part 22) of the report.

- It is possible to "win" a lawsuit that has never taken place. Big amounts of money can be compulsorily collected on the basis of a case number, where the case demonstrably never has been dealt with, I refer to part 16) of the report.
- This describes a corrupt legal system. The consequence is gross violations of human rights. Norway's legal understanding is attracting attention abroad, among others at the ECHR in Strasbourg.

Toril Øie, head of the Supreme Court, is involved in falsifying entire court decisions. She was reported for corruption when she was installed as the new leader, but saw no problems with impartiality. This means the removal of evidence as a possibility, and must be used as a basis for understanding of Shada's tragedy.

Short summary from part 22)

The child Shada was found dead in August 2019. The police informed father Yehya Al-Bargouti that his daughter had been killed. The death certificate is dated 2 days before the family received the message.

The death certificate states that the cause of death is suicide by strangulation (hanging). The certificate is missing ID number for the doctor and stamp with department. The first name of the doctor is identical to a person who had previously raped the child. The certificate is not correct and not yet completed. (This is confirmed by the county doctor.)

Pictures show external damage to the body. A major head injury has been reported as well as possible traces of blood at the scene. The Norwegian Crime Scene Investigation (KRIPOS) was not involved in the case according to normal procedure. Shada was a young woman with a Muslim background. The child welfare service changed her name to "Lise Andersson". She was subjected to severe violence in the institution where she lived.

Documentation shows that she was forced to have sex with strangers and has suffered horribly because of this this.

Pictures from the scene

The story is dead by hanging. The following observations are striking:

1. A large, red spot can be seen on the bed. This could mean traces of blood at the scene * and gives suspicion of violence involved, picture 1-2)
2. The previous part of the report shows damage to the upper body and facial region. In addition, there is reported a clear damage to the back of the head, not visible in the existing photos. Marks are seen here, left side of the neck, picture 3) It goes both above and below the so-called ligature mark, and seems to go on under the hoodie. This indicates pressure against the throat. In addition, signs of tears are seen on the skin.

The parents tell of something that resembled blood from the abdomen when Shada was washed shortly before the funeral. This was not investigated further because she was covered accordingly to their tradition. Changes at the body as the pictures show indicate that Shada could have been undressed when the damage was inflicted. Pictures show marks on the upper body in report part 22)

3. Shada was over 170 cm and probably weighed at least 60 kg. A simple curtain rod can hardly bear such a weight, probably it would break completely. (Made to withstand the weight of the curtains, not an adult.) It seems strange that the rod indicates otherwise than what is reported. As one sees clearly the rod is lower down on the left side than it is on the right side, when the actual hanging took place on the right side, according to the pictures, picture 4)

4. The charging cable has a wide, open loop, picture 5) The point of hanging is that the rope tightens in the neck so that the pressure against the blood vessels of the neck is maintained. According to the images presented as evidence of hanging, this badly made loop would make the person probably slip out of the loop before death occurred. (This is confirmed by a simple test that anyone can do.)

5. There are hair remnants tied into the cable, picture 6) According to the police message to the parents, this "proves" that she hung herself. This may seem a little strange. It is difficult to understand how the hair has become infiltrated into the knot, taking point 4 into consideration.

6. It is noted that the cable is not secured as recommended in forensic medicine textbook, see previous part of the report  The question is also about a simple charging cable if it can withstand the weight of an adult or not.

7. Picture 7) shows a clear "black eye" on the left side. The eyeball seems to be extra traumatized, as seen in the picture.

8. The curtains on the scene photos are a completely different type than the parents received from Shada`s room, picture 8) The curtains received had stains which are striking. That is to say that the institution operates with two sets of curtains.

The farewell letter that the police informed of, a suicide note, picture 2)

There is a close-up of the text.

- The letter has no beginning of the type "To mother and father" or the like. There is no ending of the type "greetings from Shada" etc. Her name is not mentioned. On the other hand, it opens with, quote; "Destroy me without you realizing it".
- The content of the three pages is not related. One sees three independent texts. It says nothing about planned suicide, or any explanation or hint of suicide.
- The text on the middle sheet picture 9), quote;

"Your hand comes so- quickly against my face- a blow so hard- I say stop but you do not hear- your eyes are as- dark as my life- you gave me."

Shada was taken from her family whom she loved about 4 years prior than the incident. She almost did not get to meet her family. The text can only describe the abuse she was subjected to by the child welfare. Is it the perpetrator she is referring to?

"wish I could say- mom and dad to those- who deserve the title"

This is perceived as missing her family. Also the sheet on the right describes violence, picture 10) "words that were said- blows that were done".

This is not a suicide note. You see three independent notes that describe abuse in child welfare. This is consistent with other notes in which Shada writes that she is forced to have sex with strangers. There is no sign of the makeup that the parents received from Shada`s room. Picture 11- 12)

Basis for action:

The duty of confidentiality is put aside when special reasons justify it. In this case there is information that triggers a duty to act. Refers otherwise to the basis for action in part 22) of the report.

- It is assumed that Shada, if she had the opportunity to speak, would approved the report.
- There is a perpetrator who deals with children at risk of repetition. This is a matter of preventing a potential criminal act.

After the so-called Monika case, where the child was found killed at Sotra outside the town of Bergen, everyone agreed that suspicious death of children should be investigated. This applies until the Minister of Justice says otherwise.

The role of the Prime Minister

No Norwegian government should protect child prostitution and murder. Compulsory treatment with contraception, rape in an institution, pedophilia and risk of early death is already described in part 19-20) of the report.

The government was aware of this long before Shada died. The Minister for Children Kjell I. Ropstad has not given any comment. Minister of Health Bent Høie has given no comment.

Now Prime Minister Erna Solberg should clarify the government's position for the voters.

Taxpayers have never agreed to fund serious crimes against children, nor against anyone else.

Conclusion

A review of police photos has been made. This shows traces of blood at the scene and injuries to the body. The alleged suicide note looks like something completely different, namely notes describing possible child welfare abuse.

Police crime scene photos shows that suicide is completely unlikely. Shada has significant external injuries and was probably killed. The Norwegian Crime Scene Investigation (KRIPOS) should obviously have taken action. The death certificate has significant deficiencies and is possibly forged.

- Prime Minister Erna Solberg should explain to the voters what this government stands for.
- A murder investigation should be opened, as in "Monika's case".

The King in Council is kept informed.

With best regards

MD (Medical doctor) Rodgeir Vinsrygg

* The police has confirmed that there were traces of blood at the scene.

 Lundevall Forensic Medicine, Lundevall / Rognum, 7th edition, Universitetsforlaget

 Human rights are still violated under this government, despite of repeated losses in ECHR Strasbourg. The risk of death within the child welfare service is approx. 28 times higher than for other children. The Shada case shows a child behind these numbers.
